NATIVE CUSCO STUDENT, WINNER OF THE ANTI-DRUG PAINTING COMPETITION ORGANIZED BY CEDRO, GREETED BY PERUVIAN CONGRESS

Jhon Elvis Cahuana (16), a native of Cusco, winner of the National Painting Contest "My health and preventing the use of drugs", received an official recognition by Congress introduced by Congresswoman Luciana Leon.

John Cahuana, a fourth grade student of the Jose Maria Eguren School of Barranco, won the contest organized by the Ministry of Education, CEDRO and the U.S. Embassy. The second place was won by Samir Tocache Martínez Galindo (14), and Angelo Smith Lopez-Isla from the district of Miraflores took the third place.
